7. Icon Description

The 5-year icon represents the "environmental protection service life," which should not be confused with the product's quality guarantee period or the product life span. Electronic products may contain potentially hazardous substances like lead, mercury, cadmium, and others. After the designated environmental protection service life has expired, these substances may leak or change in a way that could pollute the environment or cause significant damage to both property and health. "Environmental protection service life" implies that electronic products are intended to be used within a specified safe time frame. Beyond this period, the manufacturer is no longer accountable for any quality or safety risks that may arise post the environmentally safe usage period.
